

POTTY BELLS

3 Simple Steps Instruction Guide for Beginners

Training your dog to touch the Potty Bells is easy. Most dogs will pick it up within a few days or up to two weeks.

Step 1

Hang your Potty Bells from the door handle. Hold the strap in your hand and show them to your dog.

Point to the bells and say "Touch!" When she touches the bells with her nose, give her a treat and praise her, "Good Job!" Repeat this until she has the idea.

Once you are able to point to the bells and have your dog touch the bells with her nose, you are ready for the second step.

Note: It's okay for your dog to use her paw, but using her nose will prevent any scratches on the door.

Step 2

In addition to pointing at the bells, once your dog touches the bells with her nose, simply open the door, step outside and give your dog the treat. This will teach her that ringing the bell involves going outside.

Step 3

Now that your dog has learned the process of ringing the Potty Bells to go out, it's time to teach her to ring the bell at the right time.

The next time you can sense that your dog needs to potty, put her on a leash and take her through the process.

Point to the bells, say "touch," open the door and let her out. Then, take your dog directly to the place where she will go potty.

Once the job is done, give your dog a treat and give her lots of praise! "Good job!"

Tip: To make your dog more likely to ring the Potty Bells only for potty time, and not for play, it's important to bring her directly to potty and then back inside while still learning the new system.

Dear valued customer,

This step by step guide is only one method and is what we recommend to get people started. Many of our customers will find other very simple ways to use the bells. Some dogs will learn just by having the Potty Bells hanging on the door and shaking them before heading out to potty. Please find the method that works for you and share your experience with other customers on amazon.com. We look forward to hearing from you!

All the best,

Caldwell's Pet Supply Co.
